K had a daily "3, no word CIA briefing" which he read, usually as soon as he got to his office.

In a short period such a regular access to the President's mind could become an instrument for giving us - or planting in it certain prejudices, desires, mental attitudes, and without our so directing, the course of his acts.

The opportunity for ~~private~~ policy determinations here to almost unequalled, with even a skeptical Pres. In these was no check on the CIA, its representations of facts etc.
